It will be remembered that Mr. Eacho and a friend were treating a sick horse in the rear of Phil Shea's place of business, when several negro boys appeared upon the scene and made some impertunent remarks. Mr. Eacho advanced toward them with the intention of driving them away, when Timberlake drew a pistol and shot at him twice. The ball from the last shot struck him on the lower part of the leg and inflicted a painful wound. The negro will have a hearing in the Police Court to-day.

large audience. The performance in the main gave satisfaction, but the liberties taken with the libration the introduction of "funny business" robbed this opera, which in its original shape is one of the pretiest ever put on the stage, of many of its attractions. Miss Greenwood was in fine voice and made a good Serpolette. Miss Myers showed her versatility as an actress in her fine conception of the character of Germaine, which is entirely the opposite of Boccaccio, the one she assumed the previous night. Mr. Guiberson as Jean Grenicheux and Mr. Martin as Gaspard did very well. The chorus of this company improves upon acquaintance. Their work last night was decidedly effective, being warmly applanded by the andience. The orchestra also deserve praise for their part of the performance.
